Top Math Teachers Invited to Scale Their Impact by Joining LearnZillion Dream Team
200 exceptional teachers will be chosen through a competitive selection process to attend TeachFest, an all-expenses-paid, intensive professional development event that initiates a deep-dive into Common Core

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Dec. 10, 2014) – LearnZillion, a digital curriculum and professional learning platform used by more than 550,000 educators, is recruiting top K-8 mathematics teachers for its 2015 Dream Team. Selected each year through a highly competitive process, these teachers are united in their goal to develop themselves and each other through a collaborative process of creating, curating and sharing high-quality Common Core resources for use with students. Only 5 percent of the more than 4,000 applicants made the 2014 Dream Team.

Ideal candidates are K-8 math teachers, academic coaches and administrators from all types of schools and districts who:

- Want to scale their impact far beyond their own classroom and school.
- Deeply understand the content they teach and want to share that conceptual understanding with others.
- Are excited to give and receive thoughtful and critical feedback on lessons.
- Are ready to roll up their sleeves and dive into a rigorous and challenging content creation process.
- Are eager to join a nationwide community that is committed to providing high-quality resources to all teachers and students.

K-8 Math teachers who want to scale their impact, challenge themselves in new ways and learn from content experts can submit part one of the two-part application by Jan. 25, 2015, starting on the 2015 Dream Team page.
